

Health Information Technology & Medical Coding Specialist Course Content Delivery

CAHIIM defines hybrid program content delivery as:

“Some courses are offered online and some are offered in a classroom. Students may come to campus once or twice a week or for just one course or may choose an online course plus another campus-based course; there are many variations and options for a student in a hybrid program.”

Students accepted into the HIT and/or Medical Coding Specialist Clinical Programs at SUSLA will be given the opportunity to take professional courses in the traditional classroom setting, hybrid, and/or online which will vary from semester-to-semester. Professional courses in this program will not be offered completely online during any one given semester. The availability of course offerings are subject to change.

For additional information related to course offerings, contact a HIT Program advisor.
